Headline:
Unsettled, windy and wet at times.

Today:
Early rain clearing to give a bright but windy day. Some blustery showers will push in from the west through the day, these perhaps turning heavy in places. Feeling cool. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining breezy overnight, with outbreaks of rain or showers, especially later in the night. Some clear spells, mainly in the east, giving some cooler temperatures in prone rural spots. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
Increasingly wet and windy through Saturday, with heavy persistent rain possible in the afternoon. Gales likely over hills and on coasts. Wind and rain easing later. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showery on Sunday and Monday, these heavy at times and perhaps thundery. Breezy Sunday but wind easing Monday. Lighter showers Tuesday but chillier, perhaps windy on the coast.
